Gold is Not All
1 Country, 2 Governments
Pounds More Than Words
P. Johnson in India

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1921.

History says that Croesus, the world's richest man, conquered by Cyrus, and sitting on a huge bonfire waiting to be burned alive, called out three times the name of Solon. Cyrus, interested in this mysterious Solon, ordered Croesus down from the bonfire, and Croesus told how Solon, the wise man, had warned him that all his gold would do him no good in the end. Cyrus, much impressed, spared his life and became his friend. They were both killed later.

Old Solon might say something useful to Uncle Sam. At this time Uncle Sam has within his bosom more than three thousand millions in solid gold, coined and in bars. At the same time he has five million men, out of jobs and faces puzzling times. Gold is not everything.

What would have happened in Lincoln's time if the South had won or if, by compromise, a Northern and a Southern government had been established?

The question may be studied in Ireland, where the North, protected by England, has established its government of limited power, while the South is endeavoring by fighting to get for itself absolute power and real independence.

You read "Nin Fains destroy all Ulster paper money." That is one step to make the money of the North of Ireland worthless in the South. What will be the next development? How long before there will be actual Irish civil war, as well as an Irish war against England?

A British nobleman included in the British War Cabinet predicts Irish civil war as a prelude to a settlement.

Our American government talks earnestly, plausibly about helping "the poor American cotton grower." So far it is all talk. The English, realizing that the world is engaged in an international struggle, appropriate one million pounds "to encourage cotton growing in the British Empire."

There is an enormous difference, as Southern cotton growers too well know, between one million pounds and one million kind words. Words don't raise the price of cotton, feed the mules or dig the weevil.

That distinguished American politician, Mr. "Pussyfoot" Johnson, prohibition campaigner in India, has just returned. He gave one eye to the cause in England, and is willing to give another in India. If prohibition in India be successful, it will look closely for drunken souls to be saved, as they dwell only in the opium dens. And will see hundreds of millions of natives that never drank anything but alcohol for generations. Mr. Johnson will probably ask himself how it happens that the untold millions of water drinkers in India live under the thumb of a few British Englishmen representing an sin and gin-drinking nation, several thousand miles away.

Congressman Gallivan says Dempsey and Carpenter should not be allowed to fight, while American soldiers are treated unfairly. Men will pay $50 for a fight ticket, says he, that would pay a cent toward the soldiers' bonus. He might have said that some will pay $500 for a ticket that would wind up at a tax of $50 for the soldiers. However, there is comfort for Mr. Gallivan. A million dollars will be spent on the fight. Two fighters will get half a million pretty well, and at least half of all the profits will go to the government and can be spent for the soldiers if proper tax collection is done.

The Senate says this nation shall have a standing army of 300,000 men. That seems too many or too few—to me as we expect peace for a few years—to me if we have reason to expect war within a few months.

One hundred and fifty thousand men would amount to nothing, as regards numbers, in war when millions are wanted.

A small army, well paid, every man capable of drilling and teaching other men, and of commanding other men, would be the ideal republican army.

You read that the enlisted men will get eighty-three million dollars in wages, and the officers five million dollars. Those are not exactly republican figures. You would say that any ordinary business was pretty well run if it took forty-six million dollars' worth of supporters to direct eighty-three million dollars' worth of subscribers. A smaller army of higher grade with better wages for both officers and men, and an army able to drill and officer two million men on short notice, would be the thing.

Bow of U. S. Shipping Board Freighter Stove in and Condition Critical

"S. O. S.—S. O. S.—Have hit iceberg! Blow completely stove in. Condition serious. Send immediate assistance."

This call from a vessel in distress in the ice fields—the second within twenty-four hours—was received today by the naval communications radio station at Otter Cliff, Maine. It came from the Charlotte, a 2,175-ton U. S. shipping board vessel, with a crew of 31 and a cargo of grain for London and Hamburg.

The Charlotte left Philadelphia on May 24 and was forced by engine trouble to lay over some days in Long Island Sound, finally proceeding from there to the shipping board vessel, with a crew of 31 and a cargo of grain for London and Hamburg.

LINER TO IRELAND AT BOSTON JUNE 26

After many postponements, the direct steamship service planned months ago between Boston and ports in Ireland by the Moore & McCormack Company of New York, is soon to be a reality. The local representatives of the company, Rogers & Walsh of state street, announced today that the Charlotte would sail here June 26 to pick up freight, and leave on the day following. The Eastern Belle will go to Cork, Dublin, Belfast, Belfast, Londonderry and Liverpool. Most of the cargo will have been taken at New York.

SPRINGFIELD MAN HELD IN SWINDLE

Chicago, June 8.—John D. Sullivan of No. 852 State street, Springfield, is under arrest here charged with larceny of $490. It is claimed he is one of a number of stock salesmen who sold alleged worthless stock in a touchy case corporation.

The stock was circulated early this spring and forced buyers among small investors.

'Brownie' Quit Husband for Wealthy Admirer

"Brownie" Kennedy, hostess of the $100,000—Miahaw Manor revel, was married to Frank O. Moses in Lisbon, N. H., on October 25, 1909. A village parter tied the knot. There were neither guests or orange blossoms. Nobody was there to throw rice or old shoes at the couple or to wish them good luck.

But Miss Kennedy, seventeen years of age, with all the mystery and romance of life ahead of her, was bride the day the minister pronounced her and Frank Moses man and wife.

"After I took Stella from the titillation in Babylon, he said, 'there had sent her,' said the bride's former husband today, 'as we were home of my parents in Windham, Maine, just outside of Portland. My father had a large farm there, where I was born.'"

Chinese Students in Romance

An Oriental romance that budded in Boston will blossom on June 23 in the Mount Vernon Church at Massachusetts avenue and Beacon street. Miss Lillian P. Chen Fong of No. 18 Hartness avenue will be married to Kwang L. Kwong of No. 73 Tyler street. Miss Fong is a piano student at the New England Conservatory of Music, while Mr. Kwong is a student at Harvard. Immediately after their marriage, the pair will take a honeymoon trip to Australia.

LABOR LEADER GOLDEN DEAD

Body of President of Textile Workers to Be Brought to Fall River

New York, June 8.—John Golden, president of the United Textile Workers of America, died at the age of 59 today at his Brooklyn home. The body will be taken to Fall River, Mass.

Golden was one of the best-known labor leaders in the country. He probably played a bigger part in the labor movement in New England than any other man, owing to the strength of his organization in textile cities like Lawrence, Lowell, Fall River, Nashua and New Bedford.

He was born in England, but was brought to this country when a child and lived most of his life in Fall River.

FORECASTS LEGION'S SENSATION CHIEF DES ON GUN IN CRASH

Witness Testifies Dead Guard Had Pistol Like One Found on Vanzetti

A surprise was sprung by the State at the murder trial of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti in Dedham Court today when James F. Bostock was asked if he had ever seen a nicked revolver, which had been taken from Sheriff Samuel Capen, in the possession of Alessandro Berardelli, the paymaster's guard for whose killing the defendants are being tried.

The witness testified that he had seen one like it in Berardelli's possession and had often "joked" him about carrying it.

Sheriff Capen was entrusted by the court with the care of the exhibit in the case. The only gun he had was a dark-colored automatic, alleged to have been taken from Sacco, and a nicked revolver taken from Vanzetti.

"I often 'joked' Berardelli about carrying a revolver and asked him if he carried it to shoot rats," said the witness. "He showed me the revolver—a nicked one—one morning when he left me in the factory. It was similar to this."

"I fooled with him about carrying it."

Inspector Is Suspended in Probe of Fence

James J. Walsh, the park department inspector who supervised the erection of the fence around the new ball field on Boston Common, has been indefinitely suspended.

The fence, which according to city officials is unsatisfactory, will probably be pulled down and rebuilt in accordance with grave accusations.

Meanwhile, the park department has ordered the draft for payment of the contract price to W. A. Snow Iron Works, Inc., this city, and Mayor Fitter had ordered the department to make a thorough investigation and report to him.

There seems to be a bad situation here," said the Mayor today.

These facts came to light today from the grave charges by the Boston Finance Commission.

"That body reported to the mayor that the fence concern was not the lowest bidder for the job; that the job was 'skimmed,' and that the contractors probably saved themselves $1,000 in the way."

Long appointed a committee to investigate. It consisted of Engineer James J. Murphy of the park department and engineer Guy Emerson of the Finance Commission. T. A. Snow of the contracting company offered to reduce the price $250 after the investigation, according to Long. The offer was refused.

IN CRASH HIT OVER HEAD BY OFFICER

William Hurley of Charlestown is Second Police Victim in Two Days

The second police clubbing in two days was reported today when William Hurley of Charlestown was taken to the Relief Hospital suffering from wounds of the head, inflicted by Patrolman Patrick F. Gilchrist of Charlestown.

Yesterday William Jones, seventy years old, was brutally beaten by a policeman in Blackstone Park. (Continued on Page 4, Column 2)

Moderate quantities of Dorchester pleaded guilty in East Boston Court today of keeping and exposing for sale intoxicating liquor at his butcher shop on Maverick street, East Boston. He was fined $35. Officers said they found $1,315 worth of alcohol in his shop.

Waffe Writes QUEER NOTE

Says $10,000 Is to be Given Away and Declares There is No String to It

Dear Mr. Editor:

You've heard of tests and contests and one thing and another, and they are all delightful, but what do you say to the proposition which has been called to my attention and which I desire to pass on for the good of everybody?

Ten thousand dollars to be given away!

I said "ten thousand dollars," Mr. Editor, and I said "given away."

I repeat, ten thousand dollars, and I repeat, given away! Nothing to solve; nothing to write; nothing to do but cash in!

The "catch"? There isn't any! The money is for Tom, Dick and Harry. For anybody! For everybody!

My story has nothing to do with "tests" or "contests" past, present or future. It is the most wonderful story told in Boston in fifty years. I was hoping I might get to it here, but gosh all hemlock! I have come so close to this black line that I will cut it short and tell you more tomorrow.

I mean exactly what I say, however, when I declare that ten thousand dollars is about to be given away, free!

Yours truly,

GREENBRIER WAFFE.

DOCTORS FIGHT ON USE OF BEER

Question to Be Finally Settled Today; Those Favoring Lose First Point

Friends and foes of the use of beer as medicine were lined up for a final fight in the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association today. The opening fight was yesterday, and those in favor of prescription of beer as a legitimate remedy lost. The House of Delegates was far from united today on the beer question and a number of other matters up for final disposition.

Dr. Hubert Work of Colorado, new president of the association, is absolutely opposed to the prescription of beer by doctors.

In his inaugural address he termed physicians who prescribe alcohol in any form as "vitally inferior to bar-tenders."

The first test of strength came when Dr. John P. Davis of New York tried to introduce a resolution protecting the Volstead Act restrictions before the pharmacology and therapeutics division.

He was shouted down, and later ruled out of order, on the ground that the meeting was solely for the purpose of discussing technical subjects. Other matters which he would like to discuss were health insurance and the "medicalization" of medicine.

The administration forces were regarded as favorable to various resolutions considered "radical" by the more conservative minority.

Chapters From the Life Story of "Brownie" Kennedy, Told by Her Ex-Husband

Stella Kennedy at the age of thirteen, undergoing the drudgery of the kitchen and filling the role of "mother" for her three younger sisters and brother.

The gay life which lured Stella Kennedy away from husband and home, shows how she was wooed and seduced by wealthy male admirers whose acquaintance she made while soliciting funds for charity.

'BROWNIE' NOT RETURN

Advices Confirm Report She Is Living at Ease in Oklahoma

Stella Kennedy, alias Lillian A. Kinsman, director of the $100,000 "New City" in the Allen-Tulla controversy, will not return to Boston, according to advices and new letters which apparently confirm the report that she is now in Bartlesville, Okla.

From letters mailed recently from Bartlesville to friends and from advices sent out from the city center, it is apparent that Stella, or "Brownie," has changed her mind about coming to Boston "to make things hot" as she is quoted in correspondence with former companions now in New York.

Acquaintances at the hotel in which she was reported stopping at Bartlesville say that she has had a change of heart and is now in Bartlesville, Okla.

SIMS REFUSES TO RETRACT

Admiral to Tell Denby That He Stands by Quotations of "Jackass" Speech

With him in the Westminster Gazette today.

"I shall stand by every word I said," Admiral Sims declared to me in interview. "I shall not retract a word of it."

"I see nothing in American in what I said, even if Senator Modell McChesney does. Up to the present time I have not received the cablegram which the Secretary of the Navy Department reported to have sent to me."

"If I receive it I shall reply to it in the above words."

Secretary Denby's cable in Admiral Sims was made public shortly after the war. It was stated at the Navy Department that it was sent on the Secretary's own initiative and without consultation with the War Department. The President's doubts were fully advised by Mr. Denby's secretaries, and there was no indication that he had the heavy approval of the White House.

"You are quoted," Secretary Denby's message next begins, "as having advised the British to ignore my resolution, directed by the Jackass vote."

The secretary's message concludes with an order which in the present possible words that the remarks attributed to him or make adequate explanation.

"You will inform the department immediately by cable," the message says, "whether or not you consider the statement in the above words to be a statement of fact and make such statement in the time and place in question."

Matthew Cummings, president of the Friends of Irish Freedom, and John F. Horrigan, State president of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, denounced the utterances of Admiral Sims at a London banquet, in which he is quoted as having Americans of Irish descent.

Cummings, in a telegram to Secretary of the Navy Denby, asks him, in the name of the Friends of Irish Freedom, to make Admiral Sims remove the charge or be forced to make a public apology.

Washington, June 8.—Members of the United States Senate declared today that they were "disgusted" and "shocked" at the speech of Rear Admiral William A. Sims in London Tuesday.

BROCKTON BLAST

Carbide Explosion Wrecks Building and Shatters Nearby Windows

Brockton, June 8.—One building was destroyed and windows in nearby houses were shattered, causing alarm residents to pour into the streets in their night clothing, when a carbide tank exploded at No. 114 West Main street today.

The explosion fired the building in which it occurred, which was used for welding in connection with the Howe Auto Electric Company, and the damage was estimated at $3,000.

One of the tanks used in acetylene welding exploded from some unknown cause, setting off a number of others. The entire roof was ripped from the building and the roof was blown off at a distance of two or three miles from the spot. The first heavy detonation was followed by a minor explosion, and flames were then discovered bursting from the building.

The windows of all the houses in the adjacent residential district were shattered, particularly those in a three-story block directly opposite the property of George N. Reed.

Eyewitness to Shooting Describes How Paymaster Was Slain

In a factory, as I thought no one should carry a gun."

The automobile in which the five hands escaped after the killing was again identified today by Mark E. Carrigan, a cutter in Slater & Morrill Shoe Company. He testified the car was similar to one found in the woods off Main street, West Bridgewater, following the murder.

He was working at his bench on the third floor of the factory, diagonally opposite South Braintree railroad station, when he saw Paymaster and his party on their way to the lower factory on Pearl street.

Just as he saw the bandit car come up Pearl street, across the railroad tracks and speed away at a fast clip. He saw two men on the front seat, but he did not know their names. He described the shooting of Paymaster by the bandit car as a "wild shot."

NASHUA MAN IS FREED OF THEFT

Manchester, N. H., June 8.—Gaston Latendresse of Nashua was found guilty in Superior Court here of breaking and entering a store in Nashua and the larceny of hundreds of dollars' worth of jewelry. The chief witness against him was Willie Quilley of Nashua, who turned State's evidence, and testified to being with Latendresse and assisting him in the store. Latendresse denied the story.

THE KIDIES THANK EVERY BLESSED ONE OF YOU

Tut, tut, can there be any doubting. When three thousand kiddies are shouting "We came back from the ride With our picnic inside—Celly-gash, what a wonderful outing!"

Mexico-Land Jingles

"Well, well, even the Weather Man helped out!"

The Fourteenth Annual Nantasket Beach Outing for the Crippled, Orphan, and Destitute Children of Boston broke all records yesterday.

It was bigger and better than any of those which have preceded it. More kiddies, more motor cars and trucks, more drivers and attendants than ever before. More horns and flags, and toy balloons—more castles-in-the-sand-and (you should have heard them) more shouts and squeals and shrieks of laughter!

It was a day just packed full of romping and splashing and fun.

And there was another record broken. Thousands of business men all over Metropolitan Boston helped to break it. They were the stockholders and druggists and grocers and others who sell Mexite. These were the ones who made it possible for the Mexite Company to send every one of its Boston fleet of trucks and salaried automobiles down to Nantasket.

For the first time in 40 years not one case of Mexite was delivered in Metropolitan Boston yesterday by a Mexite truck, whereas our normal average Wednesday shipments for Greater Boston in June amount to 20 tons of Mexite.

The only shipments made from the Boston laboratory of the Mexite Company yesterday were foreign freight shipments, and every bit of that trucking was done for the Mexite Company by independent trucking and transportation companies.

And yet no one had to go without Mexite anywhere. Several weeks ago we sent out a request to Mexite dealers in and about Boston asking them to co-operate with us by so arranging their orders for Mexite that we would not have to deliver any Mexite at all with our own trucks on Wednesday, June 8th, the day of the annual children's outing.

The response was instantaneous and so enthusiastic in a few cases that we were forced to cut down the amounts ordered.

The result was that we had to deliver nothing yesterday except truckloads of girls and boys and wholesale orders of laughter, happiness, and fresh air. Every Mexite vehicle in the Boston fleet went to Nantasket, including one truckload of food Mexite and a salesman's car loaded with several thousand Mexite Candy-men for the children. And it was the Mexite dealers, who, by their willingness to help a profit founded upon motives of kindness, humanity, and love of little children, made it possible for Mexite to be represented 100 per cent.

Remember, the Mexite Company is only one of hundreds of business firms and private individuals who helped Chester I. Campbell and the automobile dealers put this record-breaking undertaking "over the top" with contributions of motor cars, merchandise, and money.

But, on behalf of many happy children, this is our little tribute to the men with whom we do business directly or indirectly. There are too many of them for us to thank personally and many of them are the customers of our customers.

We only wish that Mexite dealers everywhere might have seen the happy smiles with which the children repaid a hundred fold the generosity which they attended the outing as drivers and attendants. We wish they might have heard the stories told by any one of the thirteen men delegated to represent the Mexite Company in caring for the children.

For nearly 3000 children who seldom visit the open country or go down to the sea to sail their fleets of little ships, yesterday was the biggest day of all the year.

Yesterday they revelled for a day that was more rare than any other day in June. And above the everlasting sound of the surf upon the sand there arose for a few brief hours high-tide of childish laughter. It rippled all along the Nantasket shore. It swept inland at four o'clock in the afternoon and overwhelmed the 450 or more humbling bound automobiles and trucks. Its gentle flood of smiling faces came pouring back into Boston at the close of the day and inundated many homes and institutions with happy, freckled, tired children, who today—and for days to come—will be glad to tell.

On behalf of them we thank you and all others who did their bit for the kiddies.

Latest Modes in Bathing Costumes and Camera Gleanings of Interest

HUSBANDRY WOMEN. A typical scene in Bulgaria today, showing pupils and teachers of a school where working in the fields is an essential part of the "household." The women become even more expert at farming than their husbands or brothers. (U. & L.)

DO, RA, ME, FA, SO! It is so, and Miss Helen E. Crandall, 22, of Freeport, N. Y., is proud of having been elected president of the Wellesley Golf Club for 1921-22. She is one of the most popular members of her class and a gifted musician. (U. & L.)

TUTE AND TURNIN'. These three little Dutch kiddies will soon bring their native charm and simplicity to the movies in a historical review of the Netherlands. They live in Weiden, a quiet village in the land of the dykes. (L. & C.)

ALL UP IN THE AIR. But don't worry, folks, for this British boy scout is going to land in a nice soft blanket, held by his comrades. (L. & C.)

PERIL POINTER, V. C. McGlashy, editor of the Sacramento (Cal.) "Herald," who has recommended to the House Immigration Committee an absolute ban on all immigration from Japan to this country. He represents the Exclusion League of California. (U. & L.)

WATER NYMPHS. Land charm to every summer resort, and change in the style and texture of the colorful costumes of the fair and bathers. The most beautiful of course, is that of the American, Miss Evelyn Hall, McManus society girl, and "Patsy," a first prize winner at the Westchester Kennel Club Show at Gadeny Farms, White Plains, N. Y. (L. & C.)

RELIGIOUS RITES. Of the various sects in a fascinating subject, and despite the multiple forms of worship we know, of course, that the primary and ultimate factor is faith. Above is shown a baptismal ceremony among the Adventists of Zurich, Switzerland. (L. & C.)

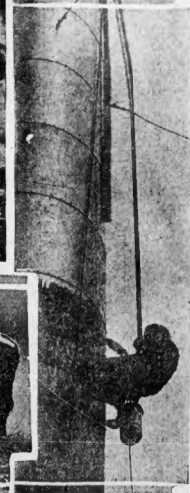

HARRY NINE! Melvina Foster, 119 years of age, believed to be the oldest woman in the U. S. Was married three times before war ended slavery. Has helped to raise three scores of children. Sight is still keen. Has third set of teeth coming. Like candy. Speaks three languages. (U. & L.)

SPORT OF KINGS. The world, however, has progressed so rapidly in the last ten years there are now very few kings left to enjoy the pastime. It's a thrilling game. Above, observe a heart-breaking finish between Audacious, the winner, and Mad Matter, at the Suburban handicap, Long Island. Note the goggles on the leader. A little dust in his eye might have cost him victory. (U. & L.)

LONGEVITY! This chap, a film comedian, is feeding his favorite pet, a cow, on watermelon. Gosh, we thought he had been feedin' the poor old bovine rubber or somethin'. Look how she has stretched. What's that, Oscar? There's two cows. Gee Wilkins, guess you're right! He's standing between them. He's a study in relativity. (U. & L.)

DIEZ! Heights held no fear for Mrs. Myrtle Kenneth of Indiana, the only "steep-jumper" in the world, who is here absorbed painting a smoke stack hundreds of feet in the air. Like it better? Housework, is still in her "tense." (L. & C.)

ADVERTISING. In this remarkable inventive age has been reduced to a minimum, at least as far as physical handicaps are concerned. One of the most novel inventions ever exhibited was recently seen in London. The device, shown above, enables armless men to shave, wash, eat and light cigarettes. It is worked by feet which operate a lever just like an arm. Arrow points to the principal mechanism. It is, however, manipulated with almost the natural ease of the missing members. (L. & C.)

Increase in Size of English Women's Feet Aid Market, Spoilans Says

By RICHARD SPILLANE, Philadelphia, June 9.—Instead of bemoaning the fact that English women's feet are smaller, leather tanners and exporters are getting bigger and bigger. Apparently there isn't a Chinaman from Canton to San Francisco who has a larger foot than the average English woman's.

There was a time when a 3 1/2 shoe was in large demand in the British Isles. Now, however, the 3 1/2 shoe is a scarce commodity and the 3 1/2 shoe is a scarce commodity and the 3 1/2 shoe is a scarce commodity.

Will Not Copy Still. Men used to take their shoes to the shoemaker and get them repaired. Now they take them to the shoemaker and get them repaired. Now they take them to the shoemaker and get them repaired.

Suggest Ship Curtailment. It is in London, newspaper editors are in a plan there for an international shipping conference to be held in October to discuss an agreement to curtail the number of ships which are to be invited to attend.

Light French Wine Conquers the Heavy Cocktail

This Will Interest Thistles
Copyright, 1921, Blue Company

Mlle. Lengien said she would beat Mrs. Milla Bjurstedt Malory, the American champion, at tennis, and she DID. She beat her 6-2, 6-3.

The Scandinavian lady, representing America, said of the French marvel: "She just went back at me whatever I sent at her and waited for me to make a fault."

There was more than that to it. All the tennis people in the United States used to marvel at the ability of the Scandinavian player who could sit up, dancing late at night, take cocktails—in great moderation, of course—then go out and beat everybody.

In Mlle. Lengien she met a French woman that never tasted a cocktail in her life, but had always taken light red wine, much diluted with water. It was easy to predict a victory, 6-2, 6-3, for light French claret over the American cocktail.

Of course, according to our pure prohibition ideals, plain water would be much better than the red wine. But red wine as the French drink it, diluted, has only about 2 per cent. of alcohol, ninety-eight quarts of water to two quarts of alcohol. Germs don't live in that mixture.

It contains iron, very strengthening to the blood, and tannin, necessary to the linings of veins and arteries.

This country, unlike the French, however, could not let whiskey alone, so it must do the best it can, and get along on plain water. The trouble is that while prohibition has driven out light wine and beer, it has not yet got rid of the dangerous alcoholic poisons. Cocktails, gin and whiskey, are still abundant. Time, it is to be hoped, will change that.

All Nations Bear Watching in War for Foreign Trade

The following is a dispatch from Wellington, New Zealand: A decision rendered by the New Zealand Court of Appeals under a patent case yesterday was to the effect that the United States, not being exempted by the Vienna treaty, could not claim for itself or its citizens any rights conferred by that treaty.

Now, of course, it is impossible to know the whole story from this brief news dispatch, but we assume that the Supreme Court of this British colony has taken the attitude which the British Foreign Office has taken, with the respect of American rights in the oil fields of Mesopotamia, a position to which our State Department both under President Wilson and under President Harding has taken a very emphatic and determined exception.

We are at a loss to know what obligation Great Britain assumed under the Versailles treaty. We had supposed that the Versailles treaty conferred benefits, not obligations, on Great Britain. That is the usual practice in treaty making when it is between victors and vanquished, and we were not aware that Great Britain or any of the other victors, except the United States, had forewarned any of the spoils of war.

Commercial rivalry has begun in an unmercantile world and that rivalry brooks no friendship. The old war for foreign trade by the old methods of territorial seizures and exploitations has already begun and it warns us to beware of the old consequences, for these rivalries are the bottom of all our wars. Commercial rivalry leads sooner or later to an armed conflict, and nations who do not need to watch are only those with whom we have no commercial war.

Bad Advice to Colored Men

To Carry Weapons Provokes Their Use
Copyright, 1921, Blue Company

H. H. Harrison, president of the Liberal League of Negro Americans, advises his colored friends to arm themselves and get ready for anti-negro riots. Mr. Harrison predicted three "splendid" race riots by next September.

The advice is quite natural and well meant. But it may prove unwise. Those that have weapons are apt to use them. And for the end, to be armed might be the very worst thing.

Mr. Harrison is quoted as saying that, at Tulsa, where serious riots occurred, "a group of fifty colored men merely went to patrol the jail when rumors of intended violence to a colored prisoner reached their ears."

It is possible that a patrol of fifty armed colored men started the riots. It is absolutely certain that the colored men were bound to come out second best when the rioting began.

Livingston, the white explorer, when traveling in Africa, made it a point to carry no weapon. This won the confidence of the natives and in Livingston's opinion contributed to his safety.

The plan that Livingston adopted among the black men in Africa is probably the best plan, and the safest, for a black man among the white men of America.

The Healthiest Exercise

It's the One That Costs Nothing, and Is Usually Neglected
Copyright, 1921, Blue Company

The best exercise is walking. If you walk firmly, feeling every step in the small of your back, keeping your chest expanded, breathing deeply, occasionally swinging your arms briskly as you walk.

Edward P. Weston, whom your grandfather saw in walking matches nearly seventy years ago, still walks nearly twelve miles every day. He is past eighty-two years of age.

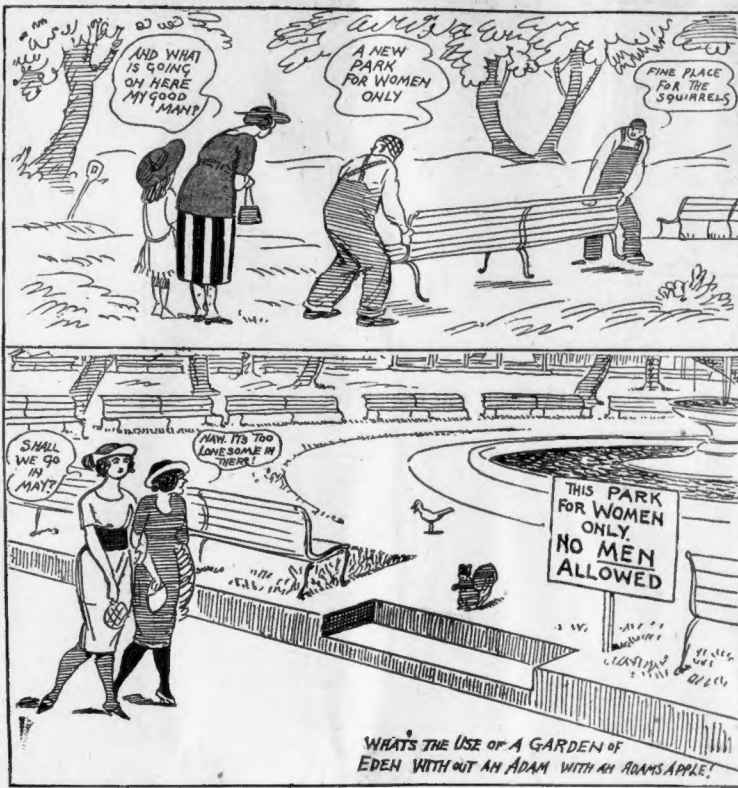

Rowing and running weaken the heart. You do not often hear of carmen or Marathon runners strong in extreme old age.

Exercises should cause perspiration, deep breathing without heart strain. He who strains his heart to win a race or a game knows little of wholeness and whole.

Radicals Hit in Britain

LONDON, June 8.—England's Reds have become pale pink since the collapse of the general strike plan which the Triple Alliance formulated in April. Take the case of Robert Williams. He used to be regarded as bright vermillion. With booming voice and impassioned gesture he preached the proletarian revolution up and down the country. He seemed to be cast for the part of Deaton. But when he was brought to the fence he would not jump it. "Bob" Williams is the secretary of the powerful Transport Workers' Federation, one of the constituents of the Triple Alliance. He was also a leading member of the Communist party. Now he is no longer a member. When his organization failed to strike in sympathy with the miners the Communist party extremists expelled him because he did not scale up to the Lenin standard.

"Who the Communist party's big leader is now nobody seems to know. Perhaps he will emerge dramatically as a new genius when the hour of revolution strikes. But he will not resemble Williams, nor J. H. Thomas, nor Ramsay MacDonald, nor Arthur Henderson, nor J. R. Clynes, all of whom are stigmatized by the mysterious inner committee of the Communists of Britain as "little bourgeois."

The collapse of Williams is noteworthy mainly because he has just written a book to prove that he is a true prophet of evolution. It is entitled "The New Labor Outlook." "Evolutionary democracy," he writes, "is a myth exploded by the war and the developments arising out of the war."

"When it comes the revolutionary situation will be the result of the partial or complete collapse of the present order of society."

African Game

The growing scarcity of specimens in every department of zoology has led to the setting apart of large game preserves in the wilds of Africa and putting them in charge of experts. There seems to be no animal that cannot be partly tamed if it is given a feeding ground and water in plenty. Attendants venture into the fastnesses and stroll among the animals to accustom them to the sight of human beings. Gradually the beasts are herded into smaller paddocks, where any peculiarities they may have are observed. In that way the zoological gardens are assured of healthy specimens.

Stars and Stripes

That a man is old does not always mean that he is the most experienced; he has merely lasted long on the earth.

Henry Ford's cowboys milk to not new. A lot of Boston apartment dwellers have been getting that sort for years.

Bonck White has been tarred and feathered. Now he ought to be starved and striped.

They are making shoes out of rat skins now, but banana skins still make the best slippers.

Gethsemane

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

IN golden youth, when seems the earth
A Summerland of singing mirth,
When souls are glad and hearts are light,
And not a shadow lingers in sight,
We do not know it, but there lies
Somewhere veiled under evening skies
A garden which we all must see—
The garden of Gethsemane.

With joyous steps we go our ways,
Lured onward by our broken dreams;
Light sorrow sail like clouds afar,
We laugh, and say how strong we are.
We hurry on, and hurrying go,
Close to the borderland of woe,
That waits for you, and waits for me—
Forever waits Gethsemane.

Down shadowy lanes, across strange streams,
Led onward by our broken dreams;
Behind the misty caps of years,
Beyond the great sail of tears,
The garden lies. Strive as you may
You cannot make it, and you may—
All paths that have been, or shall be,
Pass somewhere through Gethsemane.

All those who journey, soon or late,
Must pass within the garden's gate,
Must kneel alone in darkness there,
And battle with some fierce despair.
God pity those who cannot say,
"Not mine, but thine," who only pray,
"Let this cup pass," and cannot see
The purpose in Gethsemane.

WILL AIR ON OUR EARTH EVER GIVE OUT?

By Garrett P. Servis.

Will the existing supply of oxygen in the air at sea level be constantly given out, or is it constantly made as it is used up?—J. M.

AT the present time the total average quantity of oxygen in the atmosphere seems to be constant, although it undergoes slight changes, amounting usually to a few hundredths of one per cent. Measurements have shown that there is generally a little more oxygen in the air of parks and open places than in narrow streets.

In closed rooms where many people are assembled there is a temporary diminution of the relative amount of oxygen in the air, because in the process of breathing, oxygen is absorbed by combination with carbon to form carbon dioxide, or carbonic acid.

Nearly Constant

But when specimens of air, taken in various places and at different times, are analyzed it is found that, upon the whole, the amount of oxygen is sensibly invariable, being nearly 21 per cent. of the entire quantity of air. Oxygen is slightly heavier than nitrogen, its specific gravity being 1.1055, while that of nitrogen (the other chief constituent of the atmosphere) is only 0.947. From this it results that the relative amount of oxygen in the air diminishes perceptibly with ascent above sea level—hence the necessity for carrying supplemental supply of oxygen for breathing at great altitudes.

The processes of animal life in general take oxygen from the air; those of vegetable life restore it. Oxygen no doubt is removed from the air in other ways, but the balance produced by the restorative processes—which do not make new oxygen, but simply take back to the air the oxygen temporarily withdrawn—is so delicately adjusted that as far as we can tell at present, there is no permanent loss or gain.

Sudden Change

If at any considerable loss or gain should occur, especially if the change were sudden, the consequences might be disastrous, or even fatal, to at least the higher forms of animal life on this globe. It must always be remembered that a chemical compound, such as the air, is not a mixture of the relative proportions of which may vary at any time, although on the average they remain practically constant. Out of the causes of an alteration in the condition of the air is the passage of electricity through it. This changes a certain amount of the oxygen into ozone, which, although itself oxygen, is a peculiar molecular state, less many very different effects from those produced by ordinary oxygen.

Should Feel Ashamed
Editor Boston American:
After viewing the two pictures which were made by Mr. Beer and reading the few lines which accompanied them in the Boston American, I wondered how so many men of political standing and abundant wealth could cast their eyes upon the naked truth without feeling ashamed at what they were daily encouraging and neglecting.

I suppose there are many who, like myself, would be so proud of a permanent position if they could put it that they never would cease slugging. And for a "house" wall, if we ever get one, we have much men as Mr. Beer and Mr. Hearst and all his staff to thank for it.
LYNN. EX-SERVICE MAN.

Those Above You
Are you a top speed or a low speed man?
At top speed are you under a physical and mental strain which makes it impossible for you to do good work at all.

At low speed do you fail to produce what you should, do you go about mechanically with no interest in your work because your brain is sagging?

When the brain jags the muscles lag, for the brain directs action. You realize you have many senseless errors in your life because of your sagging spirit and you might have accomplished a great deal more than you have if you had given more thought and more physical effort.

Learn to put yourself into rhythm at all times. Have you noticed that the runners are not the ones who hold high places in your establishment? It is the thinking person, those who make every movement count, who amount to something.

PREJUDICE HANDICAP TO NORMAL PROGRESS

By Dr. Charles Fleischer.

Thoughts are things, and words are their living symbols. Such a word as "prejudice" tells its story. It announces the presence of a weakness in the power of a vital wish.
